Executive Summary

Technology has changed our nation, our state, and our community, sweeping the world with new avenues of learning. In order to achieve the vision of the Long Range Plan for Technology adopted by The Texas Education Agency, the No Child Left Behind Act, the Child Internet Protection Act, and mastery of the TEKS, we at Nueces Canyon CISD are committed to actively seeking ways to better implement learning technologies in our schools.

Information is increasing at a tremendous rate. The need for communication skills to access this information is becoming more critical. In the last two decades we have progressed through the Information Age and into the Age of Communication.

The skills needed to compete in the world marketplace are becoming more complex, with less emphasis on physical labor. An issue of Electronic Learning lists three literacy skills for the twenty-first century as accessing, thinking and communicating. Accessing includes reading in both print and digital form, listening in person, via videoconference and on the telephone, and researching both in print and online. Thinking is defined as "discriminating, analyzing, and interpreting textual, numeric, audio, and visual information". Communicating requires writing both on paper and online, presenting both orally and with multimedia and speaking at least English and one other language.

Much of the conventional school curricula is or will soon be available in electronic form. Ways of applying and utilizing this information, working together, using thinking skills, and learning to learn will become the areas of emphasis in order to equip all students with the necessary skills for lifelong learning.

The classroom has changed. Students with a variety of languages and abilities are taught together in the same classroom. Research has shown that students learn more effectively this way, but teachers must meet a wider variety of needs. The students who are currently in the classroom were born into a multimedia world. They are not growing up in the same print dominated culture in which their teachers were raised. To quote David Thornburg, "We need to prepare our students for their future, not our past."

The use of multimedia in the classroom allows teachers to present more complex material to their students and permits students to work more independently in ways better suited to their individual needs. These more independent ways of learning will require students to obtain more information from a variety of sources. Students will need the ability to communicate within the classroom, with the library and other classrooms within the building, other people and resources within the community, across the country and around the world. The Internet will form this "electronic highway" that will allow students to communicate and interact.

Student evaluation is also changing. Authentic assessment, incorporating student projects and teacher observations, can be supported by technology, including audio, video and graphics. Listening to a child read, viewing a scanned writing sample, or seeing a student presentation, augment the more traditional forms of assessment and provide a more complete picture of the student's progress.

Here at Nueces Canyon CISD, it is our belief that all students and all educators should be afforded the opportunity to enhance his or her technological skills. This plan is an attempt to focus and direct our efforts in achieving this goal.

Our plan concentrates on five major areas:

- Using telecommunications and information technology to improve all students' education
- Professional development in technology skills for NCCISD staff; thereby promoting better student learning
- Assessing telecommunications services, hardware, software, and other services that will be needed to improve education for all students
- Providing a sufficient budget at NCCISD to acquire and maintain the hardware, software, professional development, and other services that will be needed to implement this strategy for improved education
- Utilizing an evaluation process that enables NCCISD to monitor progress toward the specified goals and make mid-course corrections in response to new developments and opportunities as they arise

This plan will be implemented over a three year timeline (July 1, 2013 through June 30, 2016) and will articulate with the Nueces Canyon CISD District/Campus Improvement Plan. To meet the current state initiatives for technology, the Nueces Canyon Consolidated Independent School District will earnestly seek to fulfill the actions stated in this technology action plan.

Evaluation

Evaluation Process:

On an annual basis (at least), campus principals will gather results from the AEIS, student TAKS scores, and the Texas STaR Chart and assess them to determine areas that need improvement.

The principals will then report to the technology committee and/or the site base committee concerning the results and make recommendations as to the areas that need addressing.

The technology planning committee will evaluate the progress of the implementation of the plan and make updates to the plan by focusing on the needs established by the site base committee and/or the technology planning committee.

The technology planning committee will meet at least one time per year to evaluate how well the goals, objectives, and strategies in the technology plan are being met and to update the plan for better alignment with evolving needs.

The technology planning committee will communicate all data and recommendations to the principals and superintendent at each meeting.

The principals will update their respective campus STaR Charts at least annually.

Evaluation Method:

Integrating technology into curriculum and instruction :

- Lesson plans and six weeks logs of student-to-technology contact time
- Observed student integration of technology skills in core curriculum areas by administrators
- Principals will indicate the measure of technology integration in PDAS.
- Quantity and quality of student created products as documented by teacher surveys
- Rising scores in all focus areas of the "Teaching and Learning" key area of the Texas STaR Chart

Increasing the ability of teachers to teach:

- Documentation of staff development and training
- Teacher use of software and technology to enhance instruction as evidenced in lesson plans
- Better Profiler and/or self evaluation results by each individual teacher
- Rising scores in all focus areas of the "Educator Preparation and Development" key area of the Texas STaR Chart

Enabling students to meet challenging state academic standards:

- Lesson plans and evidence of student-generated products
- Observed student integration of technology in core curriculum areas
- Increasing inventory of learning enhancing technology equipment
- Comparison of AEIS and STAAR Scores

Acquiring and deploying technologies and telecommunication services:

- Purchase orders and vendor invoices
- Administrators and the technology coordinator will evaluate Nueces Canyon CISD technology and telecommunication services on a continuing basis and will take measures to insure maintenance of an efficient telecommunications infrastructure.
- Rising scores in all focus areas of the "Infrastructure for Technology" and "Administration and Support" key areas of the Texas STaR Chart

Meeting timelines for implementation:

- Adopted budget reflects funding of strategies to be implemented
- Streamlined planning in place
- The technology planning committee evaluates the plan's timeline in each annual meeting and makes recommendations to administrators if timelines are not being met.
